

HELL AND THE REALMS THEREOF

"I will start by telling you that these realms have not before been disclosed, because The Father wanted all to know the terror of the worst of Hell so that they would fear greatly going there. If they had indications that Hell were tolerable, and even more to the liking of a hideous sinner, then righteousness and salvation would be fleeting. Many of the ignorant humans now alive and many who are now gone believed that they would more enjoy the sin present in Hell; and now their regret and pain is severe, far beyond their wildest imaginations, and the ones who subscribe to this deceit by Satan need now to know the truth of all Hell.

Hell is the domain of Satan and all his evil troves. He is the absolute ruler with few restrictions upon him, and these restrictions are the ones that have already been imposed upon the structure of Hell, and what can and can't be present within this structure. Each realm of Hell has its unique elemental makeup, and each is custom made to hold and restrain matching elemental makeups of the residents assigned there. None of the lower realms of Hell can hold elements of the higher realms and visa-versa. So all humans assigned to Hell must reside eternally within an assigned realm or the human would disintegrate, just as is the case in Heaven where one from a lower realm cannot be present in a higher realm or they would be terminated.

Other than this structural restriction, Satan and his minions are free to exhibit and instigate any manner of terror on any and all residents in all parts of his kingdom, and he does this freely and with great lurid pleasure, for he hates the human creations of God; however, he is careful not to completely destroy one, for he views his power in the number of subjects that he has to reign over, and his lust for evil cannot be satiated. All those in Hell will see every manner of terrible thing and most will be imposed upon them as is consistent with each realm inhabitation.

The very worst of Hell was designed for Satan and his followers, and the smoke of its torment rises far above all other realms of Hell. There are no restrictions to the manner and type of torture and evil here, and all is repulsive, from the smells, to the sights, to the sounds, to the absolute horrific pain and suffering experienced by all there. All manner of perverted physical torture is employed, including exposing the flesh to fire, and the flesh while deteriorating does not completely vanish, for it has eternal elements within it, and it can recover, only to be torn asunder again by Satan and his demons.

Some of this realm is open, like the lakes of fire, yet most is closed like the individual cave-like enclosures like jail cells that most humans are held in. There are also public torture areas that Satan uses to further terrorize all who would speak out against him, and those there are tortured mercilessly, within a fraction of the boundary of existence, then re-incarcerated to be tortured again later.

There is no light in Hell only faint glows from the distant fires, and the smells of dead and dying flesh and the sulphur that stokes the eternal fires. Everywhere can be heard the screams of agony of billions of poor condemned beings; screams laced with absolute despair, for they know there is no escape.

This lowest realm of Hell is the worst place in all universes and the worst of all creations of God—set out for the correction of Satan and his followers—but they never repented and returned to God’s Love. The ones who are here are the worst of humanity, such as Hitler and other leaders who were responsible for leading many astray, and for the pain and suffering that they caused so many to endure. Others include God haters, Satanists, murderers, child killers and perverters, and those who wantonly imposed evil upon others, especially the innocent.

The next levels of Hell are also terrible and unbearable, and they were created later for the incarceration of less violent sinners, yet those who knew God but still lived lives completely disregarding His Presence, thus mocking God and causing others to mock Him as well. There are many political and religious leaders in these mid-realms, for the ripple effect of their sins went on and on.

There is little restriction on the torture of these, and they are treated like prisoners of hard labor, constantly being exposed to pain and suffering with little reprieve. The smells and heat are less intense in these realms, but still intense enough to kill a human being who now resides on Earth. Rape and painful torture is prevalent in these realms.

The most populous realms of Hell are the higher realms, for these are inhabited by the chronic willful sinner who denied God and laughed at those who were good. The ripple effect of their wicked lives was not as great but they added nothing to the good of all. There are many teachers and business people in this realm and the sins unrepented commonly were greed, avarice, sexual, lust, self-idolization, worldly with a complete disdain for the things of God, willful deniers of God, abusers, and all others who scoffed at repentance, and who were not in the mercy of God. Of these, many would have been eligible for the areas of correction if they had not denied God to their last breath.

Their torture is eternal as well, and severe. Many are tortured and mocked by the very issues that they lived, in order for Satan to gain even greater pleasure from their remorse. All types of physical torture is present here, and constant incarceration in filthy cells is the standard. There are some mass gatherings in the higher realms, but only for the glorification of Satan and evil.

Children, there is no escape from any of the realms of Hell, and God nor any other who is righteous is there to give you even a drop of water in your intense thirst. All that is imposed upon these poor beings is felt, just as it would have been in Earth, even to the worms that eat their way through the flesh of the human being. This is a place to be feared and a place to be avoided at all costs; and all must know about its reality. See that those that you teach in the Millennium know about the horrors of this place, for if they fail this last test, they will be immediately sent to the appropriate realm forever.

Spread the word in service and charity to your brothers and sisters.”
