ENTER WITH HOLINESS

“You implore your Lord for His Mercy but you carry on in sin, so do you think that God will grant this mercy without a commitment from you to be an obedient child?”

The answer to this is generally no, however God sees beyond time and knows the potential outcomes of your life, and if He sees that your heart is beginning to change for good, He may grant mercy to a degree as He knows that you may change and enter into righteousness.

For those who He aids in this way, if they continue to willfully sin, His judgment is more severe and His mercy is more distant. Always remember that for those who are given much, much is expected...and this axiom continues with even greater force all the way to full righteousness, purity, and holiness.

For the very holy they can suffer loss over a very minor omission, for they have a full knowledge of God, however they are blessed abundantly and have riches and gifts built up in Heaven that many times are beyond the realm of normal reason. You serve a very gracious and giving God, but One Who sets your expectations very high as you are graced with knowledge, wisdom, and earthly blessings.

These blessings are eternal as well, so their value carries very serious responsibility in Truth and righteousness. The trade-off for these rewards is paltry, and if one steps back and analyzes the true balance of what one gives up for these eternal blessings, they amount to almost nothing...pleasures of a sinful world (most of which are harmful), ill begotten riches (most of which lead one into sin), lust for things of the Earth (most of which cause even your earthly body to deteriorate), and self-righteousness (all of which isolates you from God and leaves you spiritually impoverished).

On the other side of the scale is peace, hope, health, spiritual riches, love unlimited, knowledge, wisdom, clarity of mind and body, a comfort in the knowledge that after your brief stay in the cursed world that you have splendor beyond imaginations in the Heavenly Realms, respect of those who know truth, solidarity of relationships with those who are led by God, living in Holy Sacraments, and blessings that set before you a smooth path through the dangers of this world to the Throne of your Father. All this and a wonderful eternity beyond all thought.

Only a fool would decline the promises of God and embrace the filth of the cursed world, then die condemned...for death is never the end of an eternal spirit which is what you are, and all other human beings who have had the breath of life breathed into them by The Father, prior to being embodied here on Earth.

To be a child of God is much more than rigid obedience...you are the son or daughter of The King, not just any king—but The King of all Kings—and you have His birthright if you overcome the Curse. This means riches beyond human comprehension and blessings constantly flowing from the King Himself, and a closeness and love with your Creator that will fill your body now and forever with the greatest exhilaration that even your glorified body can endure.

Blessings and riches flowing forever...can anyone not want this?

Learn more about your Father in His Word, and you will see that all represented here is Truth.

Carry these words in your heart."
