

MAGIC, SORCERY, SPELLS, AND DEMONS

“Yes My children, evil does exist in many forms and manifests itself in your realm at times. The spirit realm exists parallel to your physical realm and by the rules of the Covenant are allowed to affect the activity in your realm as well.

The most profound effects of evil are promoted by those humans who are ‘sold out’ to Satan and invite the evil intercession through their urgings. Some of these humans profess to be witches and warlocks and some quietly follow the lurid teachings of the Evil One and his followers.

Satan works through his ‘open vessels’ to promote his work and to destroy all that is good and all that God freely gives to His creations. He does this by appealing to the base senses of all life and enhances his power through the spread of evil through all vulnerable sources. As these poor creations fall victim to Satan, he gives them power that they have not known previously...to perform acts that are not usual in the physical realm and this power aids in further capturing those that are open to his influence.

Some of the powers that he is allowed to give are: inhabitations, the administration of spells on other living things, communication with evil spirits and demons that are cloaked in the garb of ‘familiar spirits’, superhuman acts of strength, levitation, and spirit travel. Within his vulnerable creatures, he also instills a veil of excusability—where the one does not see the eternal consequences of the evil actions being promulgated through their being, and the Word of God is mocked and twisted such that it seems as nonsense to the one filled with the deception of evil and lies.

These evil acts and powers have far reaching effects on all who are influenced by them, and many times divine intervention is necessary in order to break the chain of destruction initiated by the evil vessel. These are ones to whom generational curses are ascribed, and countless others down throughout the family fall prey to the pain and suffering that comes as a result of this very serious sin.

If these evil vessels die in their sins after a life of willfully denying God, they are directed immediately to the realms of Hell; and to their surprise after their mission on Earth (of subverting God) is through, they have no special place in the realm of pain and torment; and like all creations there they suffer immensely for all eternity under a master who has no mercy and grace. Being a follower of Satan is a great indiscretion and has great consequences, and dooms one to a permanent separation from God and all that is good. There are no exceptions, in this case you immediately reap what you sow.

Demons also are allowed to ‘cross realms’ from time to time just as the holy angels are, although their movement is closely regulated and controlled by the Covenant. God’s creations can be demonized, led by external manifestations, or inculcated by demon spirits. These varied forms of communion are controlled by the will of the host. When one fully embraces evil and the Evil One they can by the Covenant, be fully taken by evil spirits and those spirits can actually dwell within that host; and when this is the case, many unusual acts of evil are seen frequently in that host—that of the types of evil that are routinely carried out now in the realms of Hell.

Those who are affected by or led by evil spirits still have a portion of their will under their own control, but they can quickly be led out of control and produce evil acts considered to be 'out of passion'. Murder, rape, and other violent crimes are prime examples of these. Being 'demonized' by an otherwise adverse host, can bring about what seems to be serious personality disorders such as necromancy, selfishness, dishonesty, lies, lust, and many other sins named in the Word, all of which will keep one from the heavenly realms.

Do not allow evil a foothold in your life, flee from the very appearance of evil and then it will be unlikely that you will be influenced by it; and stay in the Word so that you do not fall prey through ignorance.

Live carefully and righteously."
