

Q & A – 4

For those in the realm of sleep, as mentioned in Daniel 12:2, what determines whether they awake to contempt or to life eternal? Can intercession be made for their benefit?

“Yes, intercession may be made for them. You as an interested human may pray for grace from the Father to be bestowed on any that are there, either known or unknown. If The Spirit leads you to pray for one, you may be called to know of one there. The vessel writing these Words has been told of three, two of whom are his relatives; and he prays for their holiness, purity, and righteousness every day that these graces would be showered upon them. For those who do not have their names written in the ‘Book of Life’, upon their resurrection, these will be lost forever.

Intercessory prayer can also be interjected from the heavenly realms for these by the mighty saints and any who are called to intercede. Some faithful who have died physically and have attained Heaven, also intercede for their loved ones whom they know are in these realms as well; for the ‘sleeper’ cannot intercede on their own behalf as they remain asleep to all reality, unless The Father allows them to be awoken for a ‘viewing’, but this is very rare. It is good to pray for them...and the one praying receives grace and mercy for their efforts.

Some sleepers will be allowed to go the Earth during the Millennium, for a final opportunity to attain righteousness, holiness, and purity. Pray also that this be so, for some this will be the only thing that stands between them and Hell.”

What are the major differences between the physical human body and the glorified body in Heaven?

“To begin with the glorified body will be constructed with eternal elements that do not deteriorate or age, they simply function together in perfect order and do not change. The glorified body will be made to withstand the demands of the appropriate realms of inhabitation and the demands of travel, location, events, visitations, learning, knowledge, capacity changes, and the like. The glorified body will bear a resemblance to the human body but will have no capacity for procreation or sin and the mind will be in full synchronicity with the spirit and soul and will operate as one—and nothing remembered will be forgotten and nothing experienced will be lost.

The glorified body will have no ‘life fluid’ that must feed all components, for those components require no sustenance other than the presence of God. The essence of God will virtually flow through all glorified beings in all realms of Heaven and they will all exist for the edification, love, and good pleasure of The Father; and The Father will raise them up as they desire to grow closer to Him...then the light of His Glory intensifies in that one and the power of that one grows to learn more and more of The Father. Even while all these changes are occurring, the glorified body will still bear a semblance of the earthly body such that all who knew the person on Earth would recognize the glorified person. Certain infirmities or undesirable characteristics that one had while on Earth will be erased and replaced with perfection; and that perfection will increase as one draws closer to God to the point where that one's beauty is a wondrous sight to behold. Thus the glorified body is changeable infinitely, but still retains its origins."

How can forever exist, and how can there be no aging or deterioration of the elements?

"Even those elements that burn such as your sun, will burn with a process that requires no replacement of lost elements....yes, there are methods of energy that are self-perpetuating and all static elements will be produced such that no other elements do them harm, so they do not deteriorate. All in God's Plan will operate in perfect harmony with one another; and rather than adversely affecting each other, each will edify the other, and this principle will permeate all creation after the curse of the world and the Millennium expire.

God can construct anything in any manner that He wishes, so eternity present in all is just another function that He creates; and when all operate in perpetuity, this is forever....and it does not have to end by any act, as the Father supervises all that He has made."

What can be done to help all those who are failing in these last days?

"Firstly, they need to know that they are failing, and this requires that they be shown the Truth, and that they study it, understand, and act in obedience to it, as they repent and expiate for all that they have done while outside God's Will and Plan. God's Truth is His Word, and all that has been revealed throughout the ages for the benefit and instruction of man. For the wayward, they must be brought to a point where they not only welcome the Truth, but diligently pursue it; and unfortunately at this point in Earth's time, this will require Divine intervention in the events of Earth such that humans once again recognize God's control of all. This is happening now and will intensify rapidly, for the time is at hand."

What are the 'greater miracles' that people will perform in these last days?

"Look and you will see of many healings, physical miracles, death thwarted, souls saved, food and other substances multiplied, changes in the events of Earth by the intercessory prayers of the faithful, hearts and minds changed immediately in recognition of The Creator, battles won by the righteous against the forces of evil, and spirits raised to the Heavens in full witness of those on Earth. These, and many more will occur in these last days directly ahead; and many will be saved as the awareness of The Creator God is once again recognized in every aspect of existence, and God's Power will be manifest with all who call upon Him in complete faith and obedience.

May you move through these terrible times ahead, with the courage and knowledge bestowed upon you by your Father, resting in the complete peace of your salvation.

Peace be with you."
